

Zack Hansen

Zack has worked on environmental issues since 1982, at the Metropolitan Council, Washington County and Ramsey County.

He is currently is the Environmental Health Director of the St. Paul – Ramsey County Department of Public Health. The Environmental Health Section carries out Ramsey County's work in:

- Solid and hazardous waste management, including planning, service delivery, community outreach and regulation
- Community environmental health, including
 - Regulation of food and lodging establishments, public swimming pools and manufactured home parks,
 - Control of public health nuisances,
- Environmental health emergency preparedness – preparing for and responding to environmental health issues associated with emergencies,
- Healthy homes, including
 - Lead hazard reduction,
 - Asthma related environmental conditions, and
 - Radon testing and awareness.

Bachelor of Arts, Biology major from St. Olaf College in Northfield, MN, 1978

Master of Science, Environmental Health, University of Minnesota School of Public Health, 1982